Women March in Solid Ranks To Support of the N.R.A.

"The present crisis, like that which face us during the World War, requires concerted and directed effort on the part of the women of Carmel and the nation. By enthusiastic support and unselfish action now, the program of the N.R.A. can be carried to a successful issue with a return of proseprity."

Chairman Daisy Bostick of the Women's N.R.A. Consumers Committee, is pushing the local program forward in a forceful manner, and the strong committee behind her is working day and night to get immediate action. Any lagging now will, it is feared, offset the increased employment that resulted from the N.R.A. employers' pledges. Unless a speedy return of improved business comes, the concerns that have added to their staffs will be obliged to reduce them.

"Buy Until It Helps," is the slogan of the Women's N.R.A. Committee. A campaign of additional purchasing through the short term of readjustment, during the time when the army of newly employed are getting their feet under them and clearing past debts away, will tide over the dangerous interim. The women buyers must fill the breach now. They must "Buy Until It Helps"—helps put the plan across.

Three minute speakers have already begun their oratorical urging. At the Carmel Theater, between the pictures each night, a short and snappy talk is given to press forward the movement. A new speaker is heard each night. At other gatherings, both of women and men, the speakers have their short say. Enthusiasm is being raised to the highest point by these campaigners.

At Sunset School, faculty and pupils are N.R.A. workers. From Principal O. W. Bardarson down to the kindergarten toddles, the program is being enthusiastically supported. In the art classes, posters are drawn and painted for the show windows of the merchants, and in every department the pupils are enthused with the new deal. Parents of school children have no chance to forget or overlook the preachments of N.R.A. requirements, for the offspring bring the truth home from school to them daily.

At the meeting held last Friday night at the home of Chairman Daisy Bostick, Miss Mabel Morrell and Mrs. J. P. Sandholt, who attended the general session of N.R.A. in San Francisco, reported enthusiastically upon the patriotic fervor which stressed the meetings there. It was reminiscent of war times. A committee to provide speakers for theatres and public meetings was appointed, consisting of Mrs. J. P. McCarthy, Miss Mabel Morrell and Miss Hazel Watrous.

BECHDOLT ON N.R.A. ADJUSTMENT COMMITTEE

County administrator Russell Scott of the N.R.A. has named a committee of three as a board of adjujstment for complaints on the Monterey peninsula. The members are J. W. Gillogly of Monterey, Ed. Simpson of Pacific Grove, and Fred Bechdolt of Carmel, representing respectively the employers, the employees, and the consumers.

Duties of the board will be to investigate and act on charges against merchants accused of violating the NRA code. Complaints will be received by any member of the board, must be in writing and will be held confidential if requested.

Scott explained that he named the peninsula board to facilitate amicable settlement of any disputes that may arise on the peninsula. In most counties one board of adjustment serves the entire county. A second Monterey county board has been named for Salinas.

Because of ill health, Gillogly resigned from the committee, and a substitute will be named by Administrator Russell Scott.

The Carmel local committee of the N. R. A. of which Fred Bechdolt is chairman and J. Howell Byrnes secretary will attempt adjustments of complaints before letting them go to the peninsula complaint committee. They have acted upon a number of cases that have been reported as in violation of the Blue Eagle pledge, and made the adjustments necessary. Any complaint should be sent the committee in writing, or by telephone to Carmel 77, between ten and five.

Mystery Marks Story Of John Bell's Death

Fighting with two robbers as his truck raced along the highway toward Monterey just before dawn Thursday, two weeks ago, John H. Bell, well known Carmel business man, was stunned by a pistol-butt blow and crashed into the concrete abuttment of the Toro Creek bridge, sustaining internal injuries that resulted in his death forty hours later at the Carmel hospital despite efforts of Drs. John Gray and Paul Hunter.

Earlier stories of the wreck reported it as due to blinding fog, but now it is learned that before his death Bell told his wife and several others of the grim struggle with his assailants.

"I had just left Jack's Lunch Room, maybe two miles from the wreck," he is reported saying to friends who rushed him to Carmel, "when men with pistols jumped on the running boards and said they wanted my money and for me to drive on. I sped up. They ordered me to slow down, but I said if they were taking me for a ride I was taking them for one, too.

"They fought with me through the windows and finally the one on my side jumped off, and the other reached in and hit me with his pistol. It stunned me, and the next thing I knew the bridge was right ahead and I hit it."

Sheriff Carl Abbott sent Patrolman Charles Garcia from Salinas to investigate the accident, but the officer found no trace of the robbers. Neil N. Twilegar, close friend of Bell, says that when he arrived at Tutt's Inn, near the bridge, where the victim had been taken, a man stepped from the darkness and asked for a ride to Salinas. His clothes were dirty and torn and he said he had fallen from a truck, but Twilegar, in his haste to reach Bell, paid no attention to the man, who disappeared a moment later.

Since that time there has been rumor that a dying man in the County hospital confessed a part in the robbery. This could not be verified by District Attorney Harry L. Nolan, nor by Dr. Garth Parker, of Salinas, a hospital official.

One puzzling angle of the tragedy is that County Coroner J. A. Cornett has not signed a death certificate, and will not sign it until Sheriff Abbott has solved details of the robbery. For the funeral services an "inquest pending" was issued but the inquest itself will not be held until the necessary data is at hand and certain phases of this are resisting solution.

The theory that the bandit who stood on the running board at the time of the crash must have been seriously injured is countered by the fact that the bridge is slightly marked and that Bell said he was slowing down at the time. Against this is the condition of the truck, the front of which was demolished and the cab deeply dented by the load sliding up behind it, crunshing Bell against the steering wheel.

Bell is survived by a widow and child of three, both said to be well provided for by insurance, and by relatives living in Monterey.

Put Away the Shotgun, The Peninsula is a Bird Refuge

An area that includes the entire Monterey Peninsula, its eastern boundary running in irregular lines from the military reservation at Gigling to Mal Paso creek, beyond the Highlands Inn, its north line Monterey bay and the ocean at the west, is now a game refuge, sanctuary for birds and animals, prohibited to hunters, where even to carry a gun is tabu. Game Warden Orben Philbrick has announced that the law creating the Monterey Peninsula Game Refuge, passed as Senate Bill No. 697, at the last session of the legislature, effective on August 21, is ready to be enforced.

Carmel Library,
Drawer 1600,
Carmel, Calif.

Under the supervision of the State Fish and Game Commission, the new law will be strictly enforced. Within the territory of the refuge it is illegal to hunt or carry firearms, "except by any lawful occupant of privately owned lands", and then the hunting may only be to kill certain birds or animals not protected by state laws.

The territory embraced by the new law is all of Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel and the country between; Seaside, Lakeside, and as far to the north as Gigling; Carmel Highlands and beyond to Mal Paso canyon; the eastern line, from Mal Paso northward beyond Carmel, is the Mount Diablo Meridian, which crosses Mal Paso about half a mile up the creek, crosses Carmel River about the same distance above the bridge, cuts the Carmel Valley highway just east of the interesection of the three roads, close to the Hatton dairy ranch; and comes northward through Hatton canyon. Various ranch boundaries mark the further eastern line of the refuge.

The movement which has resulted in the establishment of this refuge for birds and game started in Carmel several years ago, and was organized last January when Mayor John C. Catlin appointed a committee consisting of Gordon Campbell, chairman, Bernard Rowntree, secretary, Robinson Jeffers, Mrs. Francis Daniels, Arthur Hately, F. C. Cole, Sidney Fish, L. B. Fulton and the late Charles Roberts Aldrich. The committee proposed to State Senator Edward H. Tickle that he sponsor a bill in the legislature making the refuge. This was done, and Senator Tickle's bill passed both branches of the legislature, was signed by Governor Rolph, and became the law on August 21 last.

Game Warden Orben Philbrick will have charge of the enforcement of the law, and promises effective administration of the territory. Lovers of wild life and the many varieties of birds on the peninsula are rejoiced at the consummation of their hopes.

Eastern Star Has Fun At Meeting

With past matrons and patrons in charge, a most delightful party was given at their hall in Monterey Monday evening by members of the Eastern Star. This was one of the most enjoyable affairs ever undertaken by this organization and was full of treats and surprises.

Mrs. R. E. Bonham was chairman of the evening's festivities, and working with her were Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Lacey, Mrs. Jacobs, Bert Guilford and Mr. Bonham. The entertainment took the form of a radio program and was carried through with all the speed of such a program. The greeting was given by Miss Emery, which was followed by a selection from the past matron's and patron's band, and then came the greeting song by Mr. and Mrs. Lacey. Miss Mason followed with a reading, and she in turn was followed by Mrs. Jacobs in a Spanish dance. Mrs. Knisley then gave a reading and Mrs. Lacy was next with a negro song. Mr. and Mrs. Bonham followed with the Chicago Glide, as they danced it thirty years ago. Mrs. Kolb then gave a reading and Mrs. Bonham, dressed in a young girl's clothes sang the song she first sang in public, "Won't you come out and play with me?".

Those taking part in the drama which followed were Dr. and Mrs. Dings, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Watson, Mrs. Frisbee, Leland Moore, Kathleen Flaws, Mary Bishop and Bert Guilford. Mr. Guilford also served as announcer.

Mr. Rubens then gave the radio eercises and after the past officers had tried to keep up with the paces, they all joined in singing, "The old gray mare; she ain't what she used to be."

A most enjoyable surprise was given the eigthy guests by Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Lacey, who in honor of their own September birthdays, served a banquet of fruit cocktail, salad and relishes, sandwiches, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Miss Mabel Morrell was in San Francisco this week as the N.R.A. representative of the Woman's Committee of Carmel.

The Devil Who Saw God

New Play by Carmelite

Something a trifle different is promised playgoers in the coming production of the Community Players, The Devil Who Saw God, which is now in rehearsal in the Green room of the Community Theater for production on October 12, 13 and 14. It is a philosophical play—rich with humor and dealing with characters familiar to all of us but humanized for the sake of understanding.

Thus we see Mr. Mammon, chairman of the board of Cosmic Holding Co., played by Edward Kuster, and Mr. Satan and Mr. Beelzebub, president and general manager of the Universal Fire and Brimstone Co., played by Milton Latham and Arthur Hately, in conference in a modern business office.

We make the acquaintance of Miss Diana, played by Sibyl Leonard, who as a temptress, is merely "on the sales force," and of Alhar, a serious young devil determined to rise from a lowly position in the torture department to a post up via the correspondence school route. The part of Alhar is taken by Robert Edgren, Jr.

When the scene switches to heaven we are not among the clouds but in a blackmsith shop not unlike that of Carmel's mayor —the shop of Barnabas, the Truthmaker. Here we see Barnabas and his apprentice (Thomas Ford and John Sheridan) turning out truths slowly and carefully in the face of an all-too-small demand for them on earth. Here, too, pass policemen and detectives, earth-earthy for all that they tread streets of gold. For we find that heaven's pavements are indeed 18 karat., and upon that hangs much of Alhar's great adventure.

Director Fred Burt is enthusiastic over the play and over the cast, one of the strongest which has been assembled in Carmel for some time. And the attitude of the cast members is reflected by the fact that three of them have postponed trips in order to play the parts assigned them.

Mr. Burt suggests that the opening of this play may be a historic moment, since he sees great possibilities in it and the performance on October 12 will be a world Premiere. And additional interest is of course created by the fact that The Devil Who Saw God is from the pen of Dick Masten, local novelist.

CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CAMPS FIGHT FIRES

As a result of putting in 21,907 "he-man" days fighting fire in August, the 25,000 C.C.C. boys in the California national forests reduced the acreage burned from 111,037 to 65,507 acres, and the cost of fire fighting from $280,025 to $38,614, compared with the five year average for the seasonal Forest Service record to date.

This reduction of over 85 per cent in costs of fire fighting and of 42 per cent in acreage burned was incidental to the construction and maintenance thus far of 621 miles of forest roads, 1,010 miles of 9-foot truck trails, 1,054 miles of telephone lines, and 374 miles of firebreaks in the national forests. In addition, the enrollees have covered 185,169 acres in rodent control, 41,972 acres in insect control, built 2 airports, 198 buildings, 4 erosin control dams, 46 bridges, 77 miles of drift fences, and reduced fire hazards on 700 miles of roads and trails and 14,071 acres, besides doing other odd jobs such as developing 117 water sources, laying nearly 5 miles of pipe line and eradicating over a million plants which carry the white pine blister rust disease.

Money put into circulation monthly as a result of the 167, C.C.C. camps in California is estimated by Forest Service officials to be $400,000 for food supplies, $220,000 returned by California boys to dependent families, $150,000 spent by 37,000 members. The cost of tools and equipment to date is approximately $1,000,000.

HUMOROUS JOURNAL IS JOHN REED CLUB BULLETIN

The second number of the John Reed Club Bulletin is out and on sale in Carmel. It is mimeographed and considerably larger than the local daily newspaper. Also it is more interesting and much more laughable. Although none of its articles are signed, most of them are easily recognizable as the product of the pen of Ella Winter. In it, the Presidential program is referred to as a "deal dirtier than new."

Perhaps it is only one of those typographical slips that happen in every publication, but the location of the John Reed Club is pointed out in its last Bulletin by an arrow and the words, "The last bath on Junipero street."

EDITOR OF NEW MASSES ADDRESSES GROUP HERE

Speaking on the subject of "Intellectuals and the Crisis," Joseph Freeman, of New York, editor of New Masses, predicted increasingly hard times for writers, painters and the like in this country so long as capitalism continued. He showed a bright picture of conditions in Russia, both intellectually and mechanically, and said that news of the Soviet government was being variously censored here.

"Russia does not have communism," he declared, "but things are working toward that end." He added that writers whose work enjoys wide circulation through government printing agencies are among the favored few workers who own private automobiles.

The setting for the talk was the John Reed Club on Junipero Street. There, under Russian posters, and for an admission fee of twenty-five cents, American money, Dan James conducted the evening before an audience that included many prominent Carmelites.

Comrade Ella Winter, author of "Red Virtue," opened the discussion afterward at the chairman's request, and made a plea for suupport of the magazine New Masses and for making Carmel a national center of enlightened activity. After brief words by others the meeting was adjourned, with the John Reed bulletin and communistic papers available at the door.

ORCHESTRA CONCERT IN GROVE TOMORROW NIGHT

The last opportunity for some time to hear the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra in a public concert will be tomorrow evening, September 22, in the Pacific Grove High School Auditorium, at eight-fifteen o'clock. Michel Penha, whose work as conductor has become famous not only on the Monterey Peninsula but has drawn visitors from all parts of the State, will conduct. The concert will be a "Pop" with every number one that will give enjoyment to even the least musically-trained.

Ralph Linsley, whose piano playing has made him a favorite with all the Peninsula, will be soloist, playing the first movement of the Beethoven Concerto, No. 1 in C major. In addition, the Orchestra will play the Egmont Overture, by Beethoven, an Adagietto and Farandole by Bizet, an intermezzo by Granados, Mozart's Serenade, and the Caucasian Sketches by Poltorr.

At last the Orchestra has a real oboe player, and Ann Greene will no longer have to play the oboe parts on the harmonium or Dr. Randol "catch" them with his flute. Madeline Curry, in charge of the music in the Sunset school studied the oboe all through her vacation, and now sits in the wind section of the Orchestra to the great satisfaction of Conductor Penha.

Another valuable recruit is Chandler Stewart, professional trombonist from Pacific Grove. Dr. Hollingsworth, tympanist, has added a triangle to his "traps" and so the Orchestra goes on building and building, each month under the genius of Penha it becoming more nearly a complete symphony.

Tomorrow's concert will afford another chance for each one of us to help make permanent this able and inspired direction by Michel Penha of our Peninsula group. The concert funds go toward the direction of the Orchestra, and everyone who has friends in Montery or Pacific Grove should apprise them of this opportunity to hear the Orchestra on their own side of the hill.

Mr. Henry Wiethase spent several days in San Francisco this week.

As Summer Fades

By Elizabeth Houghton

Has Carmel gone Dietrich? Well, just look around you in our local post office and count the feminine element in masculine attire. Tearfully I've heard a number of male Carmelites confess that women have stolen their swear words can do everything they can do physically, etc. . . . And now they've stolen their pants. In fact Carmel is getting so full of females with pants on that some bewildered person popped the boner about how was one to tell which was the man and which the woman, when one glimpsed two people in pants talking. Solution: The one who's listening is the man.

Bicycles are all the thing now at Del Monte Hotel . . . both on the grounds and in the Bali Room. At the fashion show held there on a recent Saturday night, a number of people had to pinch themselves to know whether they had the jitters or really did see a Carmel girl riding among the tables on a life size bicycle. At certain stages the Bali folk, created by Moira Wallace, who decorated the wall, may start to do hulas or whatever the Balinese do, but when it comes to a bicycle cavorting around the dance floor, something ought to be done. Since a girl modeling cycling shorts appeared with the bicycle, everyone wondered where the horse was when a girl fashioned an equestrian outfit.

Tourist stories get better and better as time rolls on. If they didn't ask dumb questions, of course they wouldn't be tourists . . . anyway, I heard about the brightest of the month the other day. A newcomer on the peninsula pointing at the Sidney Fish Ranch, asked what sort of a place was up there. "Why, that's the Fish Ranch," replied the conductor of the tour. "Well, WHAT kind of fish do they raise way up there on the hill?" Ho-hum. Which is the poor fish?

"Say that's not a bad looking flivver, huh? Who does it belong to? I bet they're movie people." And so they were. These were some of the remarks gathered recently when the occupants of the Ocean Avenue shops were practically falling out of their door-ways to get an eyefull of the nickel plated Rolls Royce seating Adrienne Ames and Bruce Cabot of the movies. The same excitement occured last year when Gary Cooper almost blew down a couple of Carmel pedestrians when he started his powerful Duesenberg. Of course it isn't because Carmel isn't used to eyeing any number of celebrities, because they all get here sooner or later. After all try to find a person without curiosity.

Speaking of the smart ones the tourists pull. A true lover of Carmel had to be held back so that he wouldn't chase the sightseer. It happened that this loyal townsman was standing in front of the post office and the tourist drove up in front of him and innocently asked, "Pardon me, but could you tell me where Carmel is?"

Without a doubt, everyone who dies nowadays must be poisoned or at least shot. Anyway that's the way one Carmel youngster looks at it with all this everyday newspaper talk of murder. His family was talking about an uncle whom he resembled as regards to freckles. "But your Uncle Harry is dead."

"Who shot him?" the child piped up without a moment's hesitation. Perhaps it was logic after all.

PINE CONE'S SPECIAL MIDSUMMER NUMBER

(Editorial in Salinas-Index Journal)

Probably in no other town as small as Carmel could a paper issue a number equal to the Pine Cone of last Friday. There are contributions from men and women whose names are nationally known. The typographical work is excellent, and, which is of surpassing importance, the business side shows that Carmel business men appreciate something of real merit. The contributors send in their manuscripts for "love and affection." Their relationship with Perry Newberry has been long and pleasant and they are glad to do their part. The Pine Cone has come to be one of the most deserving of Carmel's institutions, as it should be.

MICHEL PENHA IN SOLO RECITAL HERE

After eleven concerts, including the Vienna Boy Choir, Florence Austral, Michel Penha's cello recital, two concerts of the Pro Arte String Quartet, four Orchestra concerts, three chamber concerts of the Penha Piano Quartet and some seventy-five open rehearsals of quartet and orchestra, the Carmel Music Society finds that it has used up its surplus and has a small deficit. It finds itself equally, however, with a rich insurance in music, which it is confident will return to the youth in the Orchestra and to all who have followed the Orchestra rehearsals in a spiritual richness that cannot be calculated.

With his unfailing generosity, Michel Penha has offered to give a cello recital for the society in order to make up the deficit. The Music Society announces this concert in time in the Denny-Watrous Gallery, Saturday evening, September 30. The limited number of seats may be secured from any member of the board, or from the Denny-Watrous Gallery.

JOHN WHITE SAILS FOR DISTANT GOLD MINE JOB

The increased value of gold and its stimulus to far off mines came home when John Bidwell White, a Carmelite from boyhood, was called this week to the Philippines as an assistant engineer with the Benguet Consolidated Mining Company on a three year contract. Baguio will be his headquarters at the re-opened workings, some two hundred miles from Manila and at an altitude of nearly a mile. There he will be joined shortly by his wife.

MONEY DUE MISSING MAN WHO MAY BE IN CARMEL

Mystery is hinted in the attempt to find one Henry Michael King, also known as Michael King or Mike King, missing for several years and now thought to be in this vicinity. Kelly has money due him, and Earl T. Cloud, of San Mateo, locator of missing heirs is offering a reward for information of him.

This was contained in a letter to Postmaster William Overstreet and King is described as 52 years old, medium in height, weight about 235 pounds, hair turning gray and walking with a slight limp. The letter adds that he acts peculiarly. He has run irrigation pumps, done teaming and other common labor, and a few years ago was employed by the Spreckles Sugar company.

Communicate at once with this paper, with the postmaster or with Earl T. Cloud, P. O. Box 56, San Mateo if you know of this man.

CARMEL P.T.A. TELLS PLANS FOR ENSUING SUNSET TERM

In a Carmel Parent-Teacher Association meeting last week at Sunset School under chairmanship of Mrs. Laurence Plank, a program for the year was announced. Wide variety will be a feature, and evident co-operation among the committees insures far-reaching results.

Many speakers made the evening noteworthy. Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff, chairman of the Progress Committee, said that teachers will present subjects at forthcoming meetings and informal discussions will follow. She spoke of the increasing value of intelligent interest by parents in their children's education and said that true education allowed the child to develop naturally under wise guidance.

Mrs. Lillian C. Trowbridge explained methods of teaching Primary reading, followed by Mrs. Frances Farley taking up the Intermediate grades, while Mr. R. J. Gale told of the upper grades and methods of reading and the values coming to children from it throughout life.

Other officers in the Association are Mrs. Eugene Watson, vice president, Mrs. Lillian C. Trowbridge, recording secretary, Mrs. C. J. Ryland, corresponding Secretary, and Mrs. Dora Comstock, treasurer.

SALES TAX LICENSES

Any person, partnership or corporation now engaged in the business of selling tangible personal property at retail in this state without a permit, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

The State Board of Equalization, through its duly authorized representatives, is now engaged in a thorough canvass of business establishments to determine those retailers who have failed to obtain the required license.

It is estimated that eighty-five percent of the retail merchants in California have obtained the license required in Section 12 of the California Sales Retail Tax Act, which became effective on August first.

Herbert Hume of Monterey is the peninsula's representative of the State Board, and will answer questions regarding the sales tax requirements.

My Misfortune Is Your Opportunity

My Home Must Be Sold at Once Regardless of Cost or Value

Because foreclosure proceedings threaten, I must dispose of the house that I built for myself in 1926. It is on Torres street between Mountain View and Eighth, close in, on a lot 60 by 100 feet, and is of stucco on a concrete foundation, built to last. There is a full-height concreted basement, a livingroom that is large and handsome, with fireplace; two bedrooms; bath; and a large kitchen, with laundry tray. The floors throughout are of oak.

It is partly furnished; a coal or wood range in the kitchen, with water heater; window curtains, shades and screens; linoleum and other furnishings.

In 1927, this house was appraised for a loan at $5,940. There is a building and loan association mortgage upon it of approximately $2,000. For immediate sale, your offer will be considered, however low.

IS THAT SO?

By Winsor Josselyn

You don't see them so often nowadays—either because they've died or the paint has weathered away—but this town used to perplex newcomers with its white-banded pine trees. That was when the region was threatened with pine-beetles, and dead or dying trees were breeding sources for the pests. So the town appointed a tree inspector to cruise around and paint a band on any trees he thought to be menaces.

The property owners were then to destroy the trees. Which hardly any of them did, and great was the arguing therefrom. It even got on stage when a Golden Bough production had banded trees and a new line written into the play to explain them. And then something else came along to distract the inhabitants and the trees had to take care of themselves.

"Greater blame than ever is attached to careless picnickers in starting these blazes, and responsibility points to their thoughtlessness with spent matches, cigarette ends and picnic fires."

This might well be said right here in Carmel, but the quotation is from an English magazine regarding dangerous fires in Weeley Woods near Clacton-on-Sea.

It was not an artesian well that presented itself to the city on Ocean Avenue in front of the theatre signboards the other day. It was only the ancient eight-inch main asserting its age. How long it has been there silently enduring with cast iron determination no living man seems to know, but all that it got for its outburst was a steel saddle with a rubber blanket and some sound whacks from water workers' hammers. Let this be a lesson. In these days no national breakdowns.

You can marvel at the split-second schedule kept by the big radio broadcast systems. And you are right in thinking that considerable grief was had before this efficiency was firmly handcuffed. One of the first national programs ran forty-two minutes over time, sweat and blood notwithstanding, and today if a program ran forty-two seconds overtime there would be inter-office communications for a week.

Fireman Birney Adams tells of perils the department goes through, and one that might have had a parachute ending came to light. A laddie scrambled up a ladder to a second story window, broke through and disappeared. Along came another fighter, needed the ladder, saw nobody using it and sped off with it in his arms. Legs reappeared at the window. Hands gripped the frame as the legs dropped to the ladder—that wasn't there, and highly technical language alone held the owner suspended in space.

Our ardent Red agitators will, like excited serpents, strike themselves if there's nothing else in sight. After a hectic week of inciting rebellion among cherry and peach pickers, one lady was found outside a soup kitchen trying to stir revolt among the toothpickers.

Chicago World's Fair attendance hasn't touched the figures of their Fair of 1893, despite high-power plugging, ease of transportation and marvelous exhibits and buildings. Can there be a parallel between the Fair and our own Forest Theatre, and that the machine age has given so many distractions that the public can't be herded through the showplace gates as in the past?

DON'T BARGAIN

WITH THE LIGHT IN YOUR HOME!

COMFORT is one of the most important things in your home. One of the greatest aids to home comfort is good lighting. The hours when light is needed in the home are relaxation hours. After work, after dinner, are the restful hours that demand good lighting.

Reading or sewing in light that is not adequate causes eye-strain and bodily fatigue. Headaches and nervous attacks often result from the strain that is put on eyes in poor light.

Be sure in the few short hours each night when you use light that it is good light, comfortable to the eyes. Do not bargain with your lighting. When you do, you gamble with health and comfortable living.

Make sure your home is comfortably lighted before the shorter days of winter arrive. Lighting conditions that make for discomfort often grow in a home as the years go by. Buy Until It Helps

The success of the N.R.A. program is dependent now upon the unselfish response of the people of America to the call for their co-operation. The time of readjustment to new conditions is the dangerous period, and must be tided over by generous support of everyone who can afford to buy. In Carmel, where this transitory period comes at the same time as the annual slacking-off of business at the end of the summer season, there is a double reason for response to the slogan, "Buy Until It Helps."

There is no question that general conditions have been improved materially, and that many people have been put to work by the N.R.A. scheme of shortening working hours and adjusting the scale of wages. As this improvement moves ahead, the result will be automatic. The purchasing power of the workers will more than offset the increased cost of business operation. But the dangerous interim must be met by patriotic effort of the people. "Buy Until It Helps" is Carmel's way of meeting the condition.

There will be a meeting tonight of the various committees and the speakers who are directing the N.R.A. campaign in Carmel at the old auditorium in Sunset School. It will be open to the public, and everyone who wants to understand the New Deal, and learn the possibilities of the program should attend. A whole lot of help is needed to get it across, and there will be enthusiasm and encouragement generated at this meeting. The hour is eight o'clock.

We Roll Our Own

The confidence which the PINE CONE feels toward the return of healthy business conditions to the village is shown by the installation of a plant to do its own publishing and to print all the necessities of the town's people. After the first of November, the PINE CONE will be manufactured in its own shop, the PINE CONE PRESS, and another payroll will be added to the growth toward prosperity.

With a modern Linotype, a Miehle cylinder press, an automatic feed job press, a power cutter, and all the machinery, type cases, stones, proof presses and equipment that go to make up a first-class printing shop, the PINE CONE PRESS will be ready to handle all kinds of printing jobs from a business card to a library of books. As foreman of the plant, C. R. Birch, an experienced printer, will prove that there is true artistry in the craft, and that no job need be sent out of Carmel because of lack of ability to print it. The entire personnel of the PINE CONE will give its thought and endeavor to the advancement of the quality of printing turned out in Carmel.

Caught!

I have torn the threads of the spiderweb web
That bound my will to the drifting
moon—
I turn my eyes from the blinding lure
Of ocean under a silver noon.

Though perhaps this magical freedom is
The web of another clinging snare—
The spider here will have silken hands
And gay inspiring stars to wear.

—Ruth M. Parks.

These Urgent Days

Sing not of bygone days. Enough of others
Have done with them to serve as precedent,
If that be what you seek; they, in their turn,
Made truthful records of their times; the bent,
The thought and deed—how long interred, my brothers,
Now.

Shout forth the living thing! Protest the thorn
Of present-day injustice; slay the dragon
That rears its menace on your home, your child.
The hypocrite that drinks and wrests the flagon
From thirsty lips, the crushing tax that steals
To fatten on its theft, wait your repeals
Now.

Crusaders want no consecrated goal
More sacred than today's, no bannered scroll
Of weightier portent; gaping jaws of war
Are calling Theseus to their Minotaur
Now!

Decadent courts masked well with prudery
Demand a quick bastille and guillotine;
And Truth, with all her shameless
crudery,
Must wear the crown—to be forever
seen—
Now!

Forget the gone. Forget the archaic dirge.
When was a need so full of pulsing urge
As NOW?

—Beulah Allyne Bell
in "Poetry World"

For seven years, the PINE CONE has been manufactured under contract in the plants of others. In a way, this has been a saving of effort and responsibility, and has seemed a fair solution of the problem of publishing. But the need of our own shop was becoming more apparent each year. With a young, active and ambitious partner aching to attack hard problems, we found that the time had arrived for Carmel's newspaper to print in its own plant.

Ranald Cockburn will personally have charge of the job printing business of the PINE CONE PRESS. The bulk of his time will be devoted to getting printing into the shop, and out of the shop. The job printing department will open at once, not awaiting the installation of the newspaper press and the November transfer of the PINE CONE to the plant. The location of the shop is on San Carlos street, just south of the Carmel Garage at Ocean avenue, in the old Manzanita Hall, owned by M. J. Murphy. The PINE CONE office on Dolores street, opposite the postoffice, will continue to be the general offices of newspaper and job printing.

Traitors in Our Ranks

Two strong local committees to work for the N.R.A., one headed by Daisy Bostick, with women as its members, the other led by Fred Bechdolt, are facing the opposition of the John Reed Club, boldly antagonistic, and seeking to gain Communistic advantage by a failure of the N.R.A. movement. The John Reed Club of Carmel is ably led, and has considerable backing of intelligence and money. It is not to be overlooked in the battle to make the National program of industrial recovery a success in Carmel.

Merely to smile at the efforts of this group of Communist-minded people to upset the program is not enough. That would naturally be the reaction to it by the committees. Carmel does not want to take its Reds too seriously, nor does it like to act the part of censor to anything said or printed. But if Carmel is organizing for a war against depression, it must not allow active traitors in its own ranks.

The John Reed Club is doing serious harm right now. Its taunts and fleers at the recovery movement, its pressure against the efforts of our committees, are bound to be felt. To minimize the power to delay and destroy that this organization possesses is to leave a poisonous ulcer in the body, and hope for a recovery.

In war, there is only one thing to do with traitors. The men who whisper defeatism through the army's rank and file must be eliminated. Carmel must not allow a few rank traitors, by public or private propaganda to offset its purposes. The smile with which we have hitherto greeted them, together with that half-contemptous thought that they were well-intending if mistaken, must be changed to a frown. We are not true to our purpose if we remain silent now.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

Rev. T. Harold Grimshaw, who has left Carmel to make his home at Del Monte, where he will be connected with St. John's chapel, has had four years intensive work with Carmel's Community church and has done much to inspire interest in the services there. A musician of more than ordinary ability and a lover of the finest in music, he has taken part in the town's pageants, as well as built up the church's interest in music. He has served on the Forest Theater's board of directors, and worked diligently to its advantage.

Recently a farewell tea was given at the Community church to honor him and give an appreciative good-bye to him, his wife and daughter. There were many present from the church and from the various organizations with which he and Mrs. Grimshaw have been affiliated. He has acted as secretary to the committee for unemployment relief, and been on the Red Cross board, while Mrs. Grimshaw has been leader of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church, and organizer of other activities.

Carmel will be less grieved at the departure of the Grimshaws because of their nearness to us in their new place of residence. It is felt that Mr. Grimshaw's help and advice are still to be had, and that he will be as unselfishly interested, and willing to assist as always in the past.

Champion twenty-eight years ago in the national amateur golf tournament, H. Chandler Egan, Pebble Beach resident, last week sought the same honor on Cincinatti links only to be eliminated early in the match play. But before he went into the discard he tipped over the great Johnny Goodman of Omaha, young open national champion who was on his way to Bobby Jones fame in winning two championships in the same year.

Rallying after shaky play in the qualifying rounds, Egan shot a 70 against Goodman's 72 in the very first round of match play. As Egan's winning putt approached the cup, open champion Goodman said, "Looks good," and as it dropped in he put out his hand for Egan's. Egan was eliminated next round, but not until he had matched strokes with the foremost modern golfer—and won.

Herbert Bridges, Fred Thomas, Ed Rea, Bob Syer; all names made famous by the wide publicity given the Lamson trial at San Jose. To me, the first impression is "Those kids!" They were boys when I knew them well, but that was 35 years ago.

Herbert Bridges was a handsome lad, a nephew of Frances Hodgson Burnett who had recently written "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and we teased Herbert by suggesting that he was the original of the velveted and besashed Fauntleroy. District Attorney Fred Thomas, then just admitted to the bar, used to call frequently upon a pretty young schoolteacher, Daisy Fox, a friend of ours. Daisy is Daisy Bostick now, "Ask Daisy Bostick," of Bostick and Wood, Realtors, here.

Edward Rea, just from college, was trying to decide whether or not to make politics a career. His father, Jim Rea, was the Republican boss of Santa Clara county. Going up the rounds of the ladder of politics would be made easy for Ed. That he stuck by the practice of law is to his credit.

Judge Robert E. Syer, always very serious, was a struggling young lawyer, hoping to land a justice-of-the-peace job or gon on the police court bench.

The Fresno Bee tells the story of a psychological experiment made by travelers from the ultra-hot valley on their way to the energizing coolness of Carmel, as follows:

It sounded practical. It had been tried. It was economical and when none is seeking comfort in automobile riding in the valley in Summer anything new is worth while.

So thought Casey Thompson the other day when he was planning to drive to Carmel to visit his family. As he was taking Dr. H. F. Anderson and Cal Antrim to their respective families he decided to introduce his novelty to them.

He bought 100 pounds of ice and put it unwrapped on the floor of his sedan. He then closed all the windows tightly, parked the car near his 3.2 shop, counted the customers, attended to some business affairs, put on his coat and got into the car preparatory to picking up Doc Anderson.

A great idea that, hauling a naked cake of ice in your car, sort of air conditioning it down to a reading perhaps of 79 degrees while the thermometer outside was hitting 112 or more. Might need a vest, muffler or overcoat before one got far.

These and sundry thoughts raced through his inventive mind as Casey set out to pick up his first passenger on Pine Avenue. Of course, the air in the car wasn't cool yet, but give the ice a chance to do its stuff—it had only been in the car two hours—perhaps the movement of the car would help.

But the trip to Pine Avenue didn't help things. As a matter of fact, the air in the car got warmer, so there was nothing for the inventor to do but admit the failure to Anderson and let it go at that. Doc agreed with him when he stepped into the car. Instead of an icebox it was a furnace. However, they might be mistaken, people do disagree as to the heat. Why not try it out on Antrim.

Imagine Cal's surprise when the car pulled up in front of his place on Cambridge and in it sat Thompson and Anderson, with their coats buttoned closely, the collars up, their hats on. In fact, when Cal got to the car one of them was blowing on his hands, supposedly to keep them warm.

Explanations were in order. A trip de luxe to Carmel was ahead. It was going to be such a joy that semi-weekly jaunts to the coast would be the regular thing. Let the sun shine in all its glory and strength—who cared when you travel like this.

Like all creations it was the subject of conversation for many miles and many moments, Doc and Casey, of course, doing most of the talking and Antrim listening with amazement and waiting in expectancy for the phenomena to happen as his collar melted and perspiration raced down his face and neck.

Just before Antrim succumbed and his wilted figure almost fell forward on the cake of ice he gathered enough indignation and voice to whisper: "Whoinell you fellows think you're kidding. It's hotternel in here."

And so it was and all assurances to the contrary could not change it. Apparently the ice attracted the heat, intensified it and then threw it out again.

Now the experimenter is oloking for the fellow who suggested it.

THE ORCHESTRA AND THE KITCHEN SINK

BY VALENTINE PORTER

All the drinking glasses in the house come from Woolworth's. This is a good thing, for more reasons than one, the less obvious being that the first few measures of the Finale of the Vieuxtemps Concerto go pretty well with dish-washing, and pretty badly with glasses. There's a certain strong beat occuring near the beginning which results in queer misdemeanors in the sink, especially when you find yourself completely and obliviously in the Realms of Music.

I've tried all sorts of things with dish-washing (two yellow plates, two glasses, a frying pan, some silver) including the Bloch Fugue (this was fairly appropriate), the "tum-tum, ta-tum-tum" of the Egmont Overture (not bad, but rather jerky for good china), and the Farandole from "L'Arlesienne,,' (a little quick for good swishing). But none of these go quite so well. Probably the Vieuxtemps seems most suitable because the amount I know just about covers one yellow plate (the large, thickish, Holman kind). Of course, it is a bit destructive; but who cares? Tonight is rehearsal, and aill the drinking glasses in the house come from Woolworth's!

You wouldn't think I'd refused a pretty good date in order to come and hear the orchestra playing Haydn's Coronation with strange variations. But I think the slithering about with a solemn youth in glasses, and having "Here you come with love" crooned in my ear seems futile, compared to sitting in the Gallery, eating peppermints (the soft kind that don't crunch annoyingly—out of consideration for Mr. Penha), and listening to Bach and Bizet and Corelli as played by the orchestra. I always thought, until this summer, that "Here You Come With Love" was just as nice to hear as the Caucasian Sketches. I'm glad I don't think so any more.

It's great fun to wander up to the Gallery at about eight for the general tuning up of traps, trumpet, and trombone (good alliteration) and the nice buzzing confusion that precedes rehearsal. You meet friends and chat, you wangle a cigarette off somebody, you pull out the peppermints, and install yourself in one of the good chairs (last row, north side) not without glimpsing Miss Stabell in the doorway and remembering your posture; glimpsing also Dr. Hollingsworth's back among the drums and remembering the wisdom tooth that must come out before school.

But there, they begin with the good old Farandole. It's hard to keep from singing it as they play, for we once had a Christmas carol to the same melody, "On their way, I met at break of day the three great kings and all their courtiers marching." But the jittery part, in which Henry Dickinson and his flutings are in evidence, is new to me, this summer. Another familiar thing is Gounod's "Funeral March of a Marionette." A long time ago, here in Carmel, a Christmas play was given at the little old Arts and Crafts hall. In the play there appeared a Plum Pudding and a Stomach Ache. They came rolling in—Plum Pudding rolled; Stomach Ache hopped—to this Gounod tune. Now I don't think of Stomach Aches, only the attack of the celli (Attack of the Celli—sounds like Caesar in Gaul, doesn't it?) with that grand daDUM . . ."

There's the Egmont. "God damn it, but I like that music!" which is what a cowboy listener once said of a symphony Walter Damrosch was conducting in the West. Beethoven must have been feeling splendid when he composed the Egmont. I've never quite known what Egmont is, but animal, vegetable, or mineral, this overture seems to hit the right spot—provided the chords go well at the end . . . Here's the Bloch Concerto Grosso. It's perhaps the lovliest thing the orchestra has been playing this summer. It makes you forget peppermints, even poison oak. But the baton will rap. Anyhow I'm glad my ear isn't sensitive; I think everything sounds grand.

Did you have a hard time waiting for each Tuesday concert night this summer? Did you put aside ten cents three—no, four—times a week? Did you whistle the Vivaldi Presto when you were making your bed in the morning? Of course. You were loving it all, dish-washing idea; it helps a lot. too. (And just remember the "Tum-tum, ta-tum-tum!" You can't help singing 'em all after a while. Try the Bloch Fugue, or the Farandole, and you'll feel "swell" inside. "Here You Come With Love" goes piff! But then, all the drinking glasses in our house come from Woolworth's.)

KATHERINE COOKE DOING SCENARIOS IN HOLLYWOOD

Katherine Cooke, one of Carmel's best known citizens, has left us for Hollywood. Word comes that she is doing motion picture adaptations for Daryll Zanuck, the noted producer, and that her first work is already well toward completion. She is staying at the Hollywood Plaza and says that the lobby reminds her of a news reel when the celebrities parade through, but adds that Ocean avenue on a busy day in summer has nothing to lose in comparison.

Bramblett, head of the high school commercial department, will direct the evening school. Other members fo the faculty include Miss Margaret Furness, Charles Easterbrook, Paul Cradler and Fenton P. Foster.

Especial importance is attached to evening school at the present time, in view of the National Recovery program, by products of which are expected to include increased leisure time for workers and increased opportunities for those adequately trained.

People who want to complete their high school education are to be given particular consideration in planning courses it was stated by Bramblett, who said any subujects necessary for that purpose will be taught if it can possibly be arranged.

Most instruction will be on an individual basis insuring rapid progress.

Twelve people who will be regular in attendance will be able to form classes. Residents in all parts of the peninsula are eligible to enroll. No fees are charged, the only expense being for necessary books and other materials, amounting to only a small sum for each course.

SUPERIOR RECORDINGS

By T. Harold Grimshaw

The serious collector of phonograph records is this month challenged by two most unusual albums. The first is a monumental recording of Beethoven's Concerto familiarly known as the "Emperor", played by the world famous pianist Aruthur Schnabel with the London Symphony. The performance covers five records and is not only a very fine instance of recording workmanship, but is a notable reading by the premiere of all Beethoven interpreters. Each movement is exemplary even to the smallest detail and the balance between soloist and orchestra is exactly what it should be. Former albums are of course now obsolete for this is the unapproachable canon and will so remain for years to come.—Victor Masterpiece Album M-155.

The second album will make its greatest appeal to organists and choir masters of churches where a Catholic liturgy is the rule though it should interest all who care for choral music well sung. The famous Sistine Choir (the state choir for all papal ceremonies at Rome) under the leadership of Monsignor Perosi presents the following on four discs: "Tu es Petrus" and "Benedictus" (Perosi); "Motetto", "Offertorium" and "Improperia" (Palestrina); "Ave Maria" (Arcadelt); and "Tenebrae" (Vittoria). These are superb examples of polyphonic ecclesiastical music perfectly and reverently sung and beautifully recorded. The choir consists of thirty-two choral chaplains.—Victor Masterpiece Album M-182.
